Preface to the First Edition

The International Conference of Reformed Churches (ICRC) is a conference of confessional Reformed church federations from every continent and many nations of the world. The ICRC traces its roots to a meeting held in 1982 in the Netherlands. Since then the delegates of the member churches gather every four years. The member churches base their faith and life on the teachings of the Bible, as confessed in the classic Reformed confessions.¹

The purpose of the conference is:

- to express and promote the unity of faith that the member churches have in Christ;
- to encourage the fullest ecclesiastical fellowship among the member churches;
- to encourage cooperation among the member churches in the fulfillment of the missionary and other mandates;
- to study the common problems and issues that confront the member churches and to aim for recommendations with respect to these matters;
- to present a Reformed testimony to the world.

In accordance with the above purpose, at the ICRC meeting in Wales (2013) a Theological Education Committee (TEC) was formed,² with the following mandate:

“to assist the Conference in facilitating and promoting cooperation among the Member Churches in the theological education of their ministers.”

As a specific aspect of its mandate the conference asked the Committee (TEC) to gather information regarding and distribute a booklet summarizing (by both Member Church and nation) the institutions of theological education that are operated (or approved) by the ICRC Member Churches for distribution to the ICRC Member Churches through the ICRC website and presentation to the next meeting of the Conference.

A survey was conducted by means of a questionnaire that was sent to all the ICRC member churches. Various information was received regarding the ministry training program of that

¹ The basis of the Conference shall be the Holy Scriptures of the Old and New Testament as confessed in the Three Forms of Unity (the Belgic Confession, the Heidelberg Catechism, the Canons of Dort) and the Westminster Standards (the Westminster Confession of Faith, the Larger and Shorter Catechisms). See other information about the conference: <http://www.icrconline.com/about-constitution.html>

http://www.icrconline.com/docs-conferences/2014/Wales_Conference_2014-proceedings.pdf denomination, the institutions being operated, endorsed or utilized by them, the theological instructors who may be available as guest lecturers and other programs and resources which help to facilitate under God's blessing the equipping of men for the ministry of the gospel. The information offered by the responding churches has been collated into this booklet. Apart from slight changes to enhance readability, the wording of the information is placed under their appropriate headings using the original wording as conveyed to us.

We want to express our hearty gratitude to the various church representatives who took the effort to provide us with this information.

When comparing with the list of ICRC Member Churches one will notice that some denominations are not included. In most cases this is simply because we did not receive any response to our survey for information about their theological instruction program. There may be a variety of reasons for their non-participation, which we want to respect. If for some reason, we have not successfully contacted a member church, we apologize. We do still welcome their information even after the printing of the booklet.

As we were collecting this information a question arose: What is the nature and extent of the commitment made by those denominations, institutions and professors (or instructors) whose information and names are provided? We wish to express this clarification that there is no commitment at all implied or presumed in the fact that these institutions or instructors are listed in this booklet. All arrangements and commitments depend solely and completely upon the mutual agreements made by the parties themselves. The purpose of this booklet is only to provide information to facilitate the contacts required to initiate such arrangements.

One definition may be needed. The use of the designation "denominational seminary" refers to a theological seminary which is founded by that particular federation and directed by its synod (through appointed trustees or a synodical committee). Other seminaries which are used by a federation, but over which it does not have complete authority, are designated as "recommended" or "other endorsed seminaries." Please note also that after each instructor's name we have stated his field of expertise.

It is our prayer that this information may serve to accomplish one purpose of the ICRC goal for these efforts, which is "promoting cooperation among the Member Churches in the theological education of their ministers."

Papers and other documents relating to theological education and the training of ministers have been submitted by the churches. These resources may be available on the ICRC website. See <http://www.icrconline.com/>

May the Lord bless these efforts as we aim to help one another in this important task, looking evermore to the "Lord of the harvest" to call and equip men for the ministry of the Gospel.

"Therefore pray the Lord of the harvest to send out laborers into His harvest."

(Matt.9:38

Preface to the 2022 Edition

With this provisional edition of the Directory, an attempt is made to bring the information up to date and make it accessible to the meeting of the ICRC in Namibia scheduled for October 2022.

From this place we would like to acknowledge the work of Rev. Pieter VanderMeyden, the former secretary of the committee. He did the brunt of the work by gathering so much material for the first edition. We are grateful and wish him well now that his time on the committee has passed. To me the task fell to simply update the information and do some minor formatting.

An attempt has been made to be as up to date as possible based on the information provided by our contacts. Please feel free to contact me should you find some pages too outdated. It should be noted that normally, the person who is consulted with respect to changes to the directory is the Contact Person listed for each federation that is a member of the ICRC. In this case, since they are readily available, also the representatives of respective seminaries have also been consulted. If you detect any errors or omissions re your respective seminary, it's preferable to arrange changes through that contact person, though we will be happy to hear from you as well.

Once again, we hope this information will be helpful and it will be beneficial for acknowledging the bond between us all as we labour for the King of the Church, our Lord Jesus Christ.

RTI offers graduate and undergraduate theological programs and maintains a residential capacity of up to 20 students.

2. University of Theological and Integrational Reformation (commonly known as “HU”)

HU has a residential capacity of up to 98 students.

Both institutions facilitate high-quality exchange programs for students from Reformed and Christian colleges and seminaries. Partner institutions such as Puritan and MidAmerica, among others, send students to India to gain cross-cultural experience, receive solid Reformed theological education, and significantly reduce overall educational costs. Soli Deo Gloria.
